

Australian Sea Lions 1983 (11 ins)

This is a maquette for Australian Sea Lions which was transformed into a large fountain. Each seal twists and turns independently within space and yet no one animal gets in the way of another. The use of bronze is particularly suited to recreate the smoothness of the skin and the lithe movement, and yet the medium is strong and tensile enough to allow the illusion of unconnected forms to move within space.

